THE ART OF HEALING.
ACUPUNCTURE PEARLS IN CLINICAL PRACTICE.

Join Us April 11th–14th, 2019
at the Sheraton Grand Phoenix

PHOENIX ARIZONA

EARLY BIRD SPECIAL Register by January 29, 2019 & SAVE $50!
The American Academy of Medical Acupuncture® is delighted to present a symposium designed to explore the mechanisms and applications of acupuncture from diverse perspectives. As well, we will examine current scientific research in the field of acupuncture, and enjoy the art as well as the science with an opportunity to explore classical medical calligraphy. This meeting addresses topics specifically suggested by practitioners, and expands on many different approaches for addressing practical clinical problems. An emphasis on evidence-based, scientific research is integrated with classical and modern protocols for the serious clinician. Surveys and evaluations from previous symposia have indicated that there is a strong desire for information about acupuncture techniques that honor the rich history of Asian medicine, while applying them to contemporary Western medical practice. The symposium explores just that, while providing the preeminent opportunity for networking among medical professionals working in this rich and expanding field.

This year’s symposium brings together experts such as Yvonne Farrell and Marcia Yamamura with information ranging from classical understandings of the Loo and Divergent Meridians and information on the practice of Chinese medicine around the world, to modern applications of acupuncture for traumatic brain injury and women’s health with Drs. Elkiss, Bresler, and Carr. Known mechanisms of acupuncture will be reviewed by Dr. Tom Burgoon, as well as how auricular therapy can be applied to neurologic conditions with the always exciting Nadia Volf from France. An exploration of the San Jiao and its role in human development and pediatric health will be presented by Dr. Stephen Cowan, as well as instruction on the use of acupuncture, herbal medicine, and functional medicine to supportive cancer care by Dr. Butch Levy. Content will span the range from neuroanatomic and myofascial applications of acupuncture to appreciating the energetics of classical calligraphy with master practitioner Stephen Aung. The evidence for Qi Gong therapy in general will be explored, along with clinical applications by Dr. Barbara De La Torre, while Dr. Haihe Tian will present on TCM approaches to GI conditions. For those entering practice or working to incorporate acupuncture into their current work, excellent pre-symposium practice development workshops will guide this process forward. Please see our full schedule for more on these and other exciting speakers!

The symposium will present multi-faceted approaches for understanding, appreciating, and applying acupuncture in today’s practice. It will expand awareness of the scientific research into the effects of acupuncture, while enhancing understandings of classical wisdom. It will help clinicians apply the medicine both towards direct patient care, and in overcoming care delivery challenges.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

The Symposium is designed for instruction and training of health care professionals interested in, or already practicing, acupuncture. Medical practitioners with no experience as well as those with extensive backgrounds in acupuncture will find the program useful to their medical practices.

The Pre-Symposium Workshops are intended to provide a more concentrated learning experience where faculty can spend the entire day focusing on a topic in greater depth, and with more time for practical examples from clinical experiences.

Learning objectives for physicians attending the Symposium General Sessions. Physicians will be able to:

- Expand understandings of the channel systems, and apply this knowledge to both the treatment of disease and to broaden understandings of human growth and development;
- Identify barriers and opportunities to the incorporation of acupuncture into existing medical practices, and recognize critical points in developing new practice models for acupuncture delivery;
- Appreciate the evidence base for acupuncture, qi gong, and herbal medicine, applying to certain patient conditions;
- Recognize acupuncture’s role in treating acute and chronic pain syndromes of many types, and apply to various clinical cases;
- Utilize microsystems of acupuncture for the treatment of a wide variety of neurological and respiratory conditions;
- Review the modern evidence base for acupuncture’s mechanisms of action, and recognize how these mechanisms interface with classical and modern treatment strategies.

Learning Objectives. At the end of this workshop, attendees will be able to...

- Recognize how the Western neuroimmune system correlates to the San Jiao/Triple Burner system in classical Chinese medicine;
- Recognize the application of the San Jiao/Triple Burner for conditions of chronic inflammation.

PRE-SYMPOSIUM WORKSHOP II
Auricular Acupuncture
Workshop led by Gary Stanton, MD, FAAMA This workshop will focus primarily on the French style of auriculotherapy, as it is currently taught in the inter-university diploma program at the University of Paris. Throughout the workshop references will also be made towards other auricular acupuncture styles, particularly that from China. Dr. Gary Stanton will discuss the history and theoretical basis to its scientific basis. For the clinical portion of the workshop, he will contrast traditional and contemporary conceptual, diagnostic, and treatment approaches. A variety of point stimulation techniques will be discussed. There will be comparisons between French and Chinese cartographies, noting their similarities and differences.

Learning Objectives. At the end of this workshop, attendees will be able to...

- Describe the history of auricular acupuncture
- Recognize the application of auricular acupuncture in modern practice
- Appreciate theoretical and clinical differences between French and Chinese auricular techniques
- Explain the scientific basis of auriculotherapy, including auricular acupuncture as an evidence-based medicine
- Identify and restate the University of Paris XI approach to auriculotherapy in medical and neurological conditions
- Discuss the latest published developments in auriculotherapy from the 9th International Symposium in Singapore

PRE-SYMPOSIUM WORKSHOP III
Integrative Oncology: Supportive Care for Cancer Patients
Workshop led by Butch Levy, MD. This workshop will cover a broad range of topics that will provide the practitioner with advanced, practical cutting-edge skills for the supportive care of cancer patients. The paradigms of Chinese, Japanese, Functional, and Western medicines will be integrated to provide multiple perspectives on diagnosis and treatment.

To begin, the pathways and therapeutic modalities needed to reduce cancer risk will be discussed, as well as understanding how the terrain of the patient contributes to cancer occurrence, prevention, and treatment. Topics for this portion include environmental burden, hormonal balances, chronic infections, lifestyle issues, nutritional depletion, and genetic influences.

In order to improve supportive care, diagnostic tools helping to access deeper pathways of the web will be discussed. These tools help to expand care to include not only the regular Meridians, but also the Extra Vessels and the Divergent Channels. The Japanese abdominal palpation approach to herbal diagnosis and treatment, Kampo, will also be described.

In order to reduce the side effects of chemotherapy and speed recovery, four phases of supportive acupuncture and herbal care will be presented. Further, a separate discussion on radiation side effects will be provided.

For patients completing chemotherapy treatment, protocols will be presented to enhance rejuvenation and hopefully prevent recurrences. These will include acupuncture protocols and herbal formulas specific to many common cancers, along with laboratory testing and necessary lifestyle changes that are necessary to implement for long term survival.

Learning Objectives. At the end of this workshop, attendees will be able to...

- Recognize how each patient presents with his/her own terrain and how this forms the basis both for cancer risk and for opportunities for prevention and treatment;
- Utilize the 12 primary meridians, the 8 extra vessels, and the divergent channels both for diagnosis (including pulses) and treatment;
- Apply tools from Functional Medicine, such as the use of lab work to recognize chronic inflammation;
- Describe the fundamentals of the Divergent Channel network;
- Optimize lifestyle factors such as sleep, diet, and fitness;
- Implement strategies to accelerate post-operative recovery;
- Manage and minimize neuropathy from chemotherapy;
- Assess the use of individual herbs and acupuncture protocols for specific cancers with the goal of reducing recurrences.

PRE-SYMPOSIUM WORKSHOP IV
How to Successfully Incorporate Medical Acupuncture into Your Medical Practice
Workshop led by Nick Kouchis, MD. This workshop will provide the attendee with an overview of the opportunities and challenges to the incorporation of medical acupuncture into current medical practice.

Through the exploration of seven topics, the attendee will be able to construct a business plan and implement steps important to operating a successful medical acupuncture practice. These seven topics include 1) articulating the individual provider’s mission and practice objectives; 2) evaluating the current practice setting to identify opportunities for and barriers to the incorporation of medical acupuncture; 3) establishing which medical acupuncture services are fit to be offered in the practice, and thereby create marketing goals and strategies for those services; 4) determining the necessary clinical office setup and supplies needed to implement practice; 5) calculating new medical acupuncture expenses and overhead costs; 6) formulating payment and billing practices; 7) satisfying legal and regulatory requirements.

The workshop will consist of lecture format, panel discussion, written worksheets, and attendee questions. Through these means of attendee engagement, general practice management operations and individual factors will be addressed.

Learning Objectives. At the end of this workshop, attendees will be able to...

- Articulate your mission and practice objectives;
- Evaluate your practice setting type;
- Establish your patient care services and marketing;
- Determine necessary clinical setup and supplies;
- Calculate expenses and overhead costs;
